

PCT LTD Expands Production Capacity and Accelerates Hypochlorous Acid Production and Sales

Little River, South Carolina — (March 25, 2020) PCT LTD (OTC Pink: PCTL) ("PCTL") is continuing to expand business operations at a rapid rate while experiencing a dramatic increase in inquiries and orders from new and existing clients.

Following up on an earlier release from March 18th; a second 10,000-gallon fluid order has been shipped to an existing customer in the Midwest. Recurring orders to this sub-registrant are expected to follow in the coming weeks.

“The demand for our products has been nothing short of explosive,” explains CEO Gary Grieco. “Due to this high demand, we are shifting our focus, in the short term, towards fluid production, sales, and distribution.”

The company has shifted its focus towards fulfilling an increasing number of fluid orders. To meet this growing demand, PCTL is expanding its production capacity and will double their current fluid production output within the next week to ten days.

Jody Read, COO stated: “We are still continuing to see significant interest in the facility-based Annihilyzer® Infection Control System. However, we are not able to coordinate installations due to travel restrictions and availability of hospital staff to implement the systems. We are continuing to build systems and at the same time utilize our current South Carolina facility’s capabilities with large volume systems to produce mass quantities of disinfectant for distributors and hospitals. PCT’s previous investment in building large volume systems and the testing facility was easily modified into a fluid production operation with little to no additional expense. In addition, we are continuing to engage suppliers to propagate the pipeline of systems in process.”

“We’re adding additional production and support personnel to our growing team,” says PCT Corp. President Bill Prince. “Currently, we are focusing our efforts on providing a much-needed solution for our clients and our communities. Our disinfecting solutions offer an elevated level of safety for patients, healthcare professionals, and support staff to be around; while at the same time providing an effective weapon in the fight against infection.”

The Annihilyzer® Infection Control System remains the company’s flagship product and continues to garner intense interest from prospective hospitals and healthcare facilities.

CEO Gary Grieco adds. “We’re temporarily adjusting our focus towards where we can have the biggest impact. With everything going on in the country right now, we have a tremendous opportunity to not only grow as a business, but to help our fellow Americans in their time of need.”

Due to increased attention as a result of the ongoing coronavirus pandemic, PCTL has been on an accelerated pace towards profitability and is preparing for double-digit growth into Q2 and beyond.

“Growth has been tremendous,” says CFO Marion Sofield, adding that the company is expecting to report record sales and revenues in Q1 2020. “We are working diligently on becoming current with our financial filings and are eager to share information on current and ongoing events with our shareholders. The world looks different today than it did a few weeks ago. Many of the professionals involved with the filing of our financials find themselves displaced or working from home under these unusual circumstances. However, we are full steam ahead on all fronts. Our reports are in the appropriate hands and we expect to make all required filings as quickly as possible.”
